

PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMA in Expressive Arts Therapy

10-day (60 hour), part-time, professional programme

When art and psychotherapy are joined, the scope and depth of each can be expanded, and when working together, they are tied to the continuities of humanity's history of healing.

Shaun McNiff

The programme is aimed at professionals who wish to enhance their current practice in the use of expressive arts and art therapy, or those who wish to integrate the academic and practical applications of the creative process into their therapeutic work with people.

The programme is experiential in nature and the focus is on personal exploration using expressive arts techniques. A person-centred approach is used in Part One, with psychodynamic application in Part Two of the programme.

The aim of this programme is to provide participants with the ability to:

- deepen their understanding of the various expressive arts approaches and to develop their own emerging expressive arts style and approach.
- integrate clinical and expressive arts therapy theory and practice, and combine and integrate the academic and practical applications of the creative process.
- learn about their own creative processes and deepen their spiritual practice through the expressive arts.
- demonstrate the supportive role of non-verbal approaches to therapeutic approaches that rely predominantly on verbal modes of expression and understanding.

Admission/Minimum Entry Requirements

This programme is aimed at participants who have already completed a relevant professional academic qualification in a helping/caring area.

To secure a place on this programme please submit an application form accompanied by a letter of introduction, of no less than 250 words, clearly stating your desire to participate in this programme. An interview will form part of the selection process (this may be conducted by telephone).

Teaching & Learning Strategies

The learner will integrate their learning through individual and group process of expressive arts therapy, discussion and readings. Expressive arts therapy approaches will be demonstrated compared and contrasted.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this programme the learner should be able to:

- think critically, theoretically and concretely about expressive arts therapeutic approaches.
- engage clients in the healing process through the therapeutic use of expressive arts therapy.
- implement the arts to facilitate spiritual growth and expand consciousness, including the therapeutic use of ritual.
- appraise the weaving together of different expressive arts modalities to support a holistic therapeutic approach.
- focus on recent and contemporary developments in expressive arts therapy theory and practice.

I believe that creativity is like freedom, once you taste it, you can't do without it. It is a transformative and healing process.

Facilitators

- Christine Moran MA, MNAPCP, MIACP, MEAC, accredited supervisor, expressive arts therapist, author.
- Pauline Macey MSc, Dip ADT, Dip Fine Art, Dip Colour Therapy, (ITEC), MNAPCP, MIACP, accredited supervisor.

Both facilitators have trained in Person-Centred Expressive Arts with Natalie Rogers (daughter of Carl Rogers).

Previous Participant's Feedback (extract)

"Throughout the 6 weekends I always felt the work I did came from me and in no way was dictated by or directed by either Pauline or Christine, I was guided and supported by them and that was really important to me. As a result my art, and that of all the other 9 participants, was original, authentic and was always respected.

Over the following weekends we painted, sculpted, moved, danced, wrote, cried, laughed, let all our sounds out, and great discussions took place and work was done, as trust was built in the group. This was not just a verbal form of expression, or a discussion of what the theory of expressive arts is about, no, it was an experience of getting down and doing the work ourselves; it was a way of showing us up-close how to bring this to our clients.

After each piece of work the group came together and each person shared what the picture or piece that they had completed meant to them."
